POWER STOCK TUMBLES IN RAID TO-DAY.

Other Interests of Capitalists Behind Company Involved in a General Attack.

ALL SUFFER BIG LOSSES.

Rutland Railroad, Hackensack Meadows and Other W. Seward Webb Companies Pounded by Clique.

The group of capitalists who are interested in General Carriage and International Power had a hard time of it to-day.

Power, which opened at 100, fell with a crash to 85 this afternoon on the Stock Exchange. Rutland Railroad of Vermont, to the presidency of which Dr. H. Seward Webb was recently elected, also took a header. It sold off 18 points in the Boston market, but did not do so badly here.

Mr. Webb is interested with J. H. Hoadley in Power and General Carriage. He is also interested heavily in Dominion Securities, Hackensack Meadows and North American Lumber and Pulp.

The stocks of these three companies are dealt in only on the curb, and the brokers there just knocked the life out of them this afternoon. There was evidently an organized effort to get even with the men who have been "riding" Power and Carriage up to such an extent lately, and everything that they were suspected of being interested in was pounded.

Dominion Securities, which opened at 118 this morning, was bid down to 50. Hackensack, which opened at 75, was bid down to 12, and North American Lumber and Pulp, which opened at 39, at one time couldn't get a better bid than 3.

It was said that the banks were calling in their loans which were covered by the stocks of these companies as collateral, and that the result would be that certain persons would have to do some scratching if they kept out of trouble.

One well-known firm, with a Stock Exchange membership, got into a tight place and had a lot of trouble filling their contracts. President Keppeler, of the Stock Exchange, called after Exchange hours. He said no action had been taken in the matter.

He said that the matter would be taken care of to-morrow.

ROOSEVELT PROMOTES GUNNER MORGAN.

President Sends His Nomination for Position of Chief Gunner, Created for Him to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 2.—President Roosevelt today gave to the Senate the nomination of Gunner Charles D. Morgan, of the navy, to be chief gunner. The position has been created for him.

Gunner Morgan came into the public eye in consequence of a letter written by Admiral Sampson in which he opposed the application of Morgan for promotion to the rank of a commissioned officer because his early training had not been such as to fit him for the special duties of a naval officer.

There was a storm of adverse comment. Morgan did not enter the examination, and the position was left vacant. When the new position of Chief Gunner was created Morgan was the only one who was qualified for the place by his naval training.

Another examination was ordered and he passed satisfactorily. Not long after the Senate decided Morgan had the right to the position, but the bill was dropped.

SENATE REJECTS MORGAN.

VIENNA, May 2.—A telegram from Vienna announced that the Austrian Government has decided to reject the application of the German and Austrian candidate for the position of chief gunner.

The decision was based on the fact that the candidate was not a naval officer, and that the position was created for a naval officer.

RIOT AT LODI QUELLED BY ARMED MEN.

Deputies Clashed with Alexander Dye Works Strikers and Put Them to Flight.

DISORDER IN ASTORIA.

Non-Union Man at the Daimler Motor Works Fired Five Shots Into Ranks of the Strikers.

Several hundred strikers assembled in front of the Alexander Dye Works in Lodi, N. J., at noon to-day determined not to permit any of the men at work behind the big barred gates to get back if they should come out for dinner and to allow no dinner pails to go in if the workers decided to avoid a clash by remaining inside.

They were armed with clubs and in a dangerous mood. There had been a mass-meeting at 11 o'clock, at which the leaders counselled against violence, but at the same time advised men to prevent any workman who came out of the shop from going back and to starve them all out by capturing all food sent to them.

Inside the employees of Blum Brothers, who run the Alexander factory, were prepared to defend themselves should the strikers attempt to storm the place. Three lines of hose were attached to the boilers and run out into the yard in front of the stockade gate.

Two men stood at each nozzle and the strikers were warned by the deputies that if they attempted a rush they would be scalded to death.

Strikers Driven Back.

This kept them from any overt action as long as the men remained inside. Just before noon a large coal wagon was driven up to the gate, and the strikers dividing that it was meant to carry the workers to dinner, made a rush at it. The deputies on guard drove them back so that the workers were forced to use the boiling-water means of defense.

Very Rev. Dean William McNulty, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church, who was visiting in the city, asked Chairman James W. McComb, of the dye-house strikers, to confer with him in regard to the strike. McNulty is becoming very serious. Thousands of silk operatives may be forced into idleness in consequence of not having dyed silk with which to work.

There was enthusiasm among the strikers at the news of the meeting to-day when it was announced that the David Henry Building Company, the largest employing firm, had yielded to the demands of the journey-men and signed the schedule.

FIVE SHOTS FIRED
IN ASTORIA STRIKE.

Shots were fired in the strike at the Daimler Motor Works, Astoria, at noon to-day. As the non-union men were leaving the factory, Palmer H. Heyman, one of their number, is said to have taken refuge behind the skirts of one of the women employed in the clothing-room and to have fired five shots at a crowd of strikers who had assembled a few hundred feet from the factory.

None of the shots took effect. Heyman was looked up by a police officer and the case was continued until to-morrow.

MRS. HERZOG IN NEW SUIT AGAINST WILL.

Daughter of Millionaire James J. McComb Brings Another Action in Westchester.

MYSTERY IS BEHIND IT.

Married Artist, Although Her Father's Will Cut Her In from $100,000 to $15,000 a Year.

All the heirs of the late James J. McComb, of Dobbs Ferry, are being served with papers to-day in a suit brought against them by Mrs. Fannie Rayne McComb Herzog, one of the dead millionaire's daughters.

The action is being brought in Westchester County, and the papers are being served by Sheriff Miller and his deputies, but what the meaning of the suit is has not been made plain.

There is, in truth, much mystery about the suit, as the determination as to whether the codicil to the McComb will which cut off Mrs. Herzog with $15,000 a year instead of $100,000 a year in case she should marry Louis Herzog, an artist of Philadelphia, was legal, is now in the hands of Justice Truax, of the Supreme Court.

A decision is daily expected, the evidence in the suit to break the codicil having been heard last March. According to the papers in the present suit, Harrison & Davis, of No. 28 Wall street, are the attorneys, and yet Mr. Elliot of that firm professed entire ignorance in the matter to-day. His firm, he said, were the attorneys in the litigation before Justice Truax, but as to the present suit he knew nothing.

Sheriff Miller added to the mystery by stating that he was serving the papers on twenty-two heirs to-day, but he said he did not know the nature of the action.

Father Left $100,000,000.

Mrs. Herzog was one of the four children of James J. McComb, who died last March at his home in Dobbs Ferry. He left an estate estimated to be worth $100,000,000.

By the terms of his will his daughter Fannie became possessed of an income of about $100,000 a year, but a codicil added that in case she married Artist Herzog she should receive an annuity of $15,000.

Miss McComb did not relish the codicil. She wanted to marry Herzog, and she did not want to lose $85,000 a year by so doing. Last October she asked the Supreme Court to declare the codicil invalid, as against public policy and in restraint of her free will. Justice Root refused to do so, handing down a decision which was in effect that the Court could not then pass on the question, which was purely academic, and that if the codicil was valid the only way to do so was to marry Herzog and test it after marriage.

This is just what she proceeded to do. She was married to him by the Rev. Dr. Van Dyke in the Brick Presbyterian Church in December. In March she brought another suit before Justice Truax to declare the codicil invalid. Justice Truax reserved decision.

FAVORABLE REPORT FROM MGR. CORRIGAN.

This bulletin was issued this afternoon from the home of Archbishop Corrigan, signed by his physicians: "To-day the Archbishop is comfortable. He has been upon a bed rest for a portion of the day. The weakness is less marked and all symptoms favorable." Dr. Keyes and Delafield reached the archiepiscopal residence about half past two. Dr. Delafield remained only ten minutes, but Dr. Keyes was with the Archbishop for some time. Dr. Keyes said there was no significance in his lengthened stay.

In the presence of a number of women and well-known New Yorkers, interested in preserving the historic places of this city, the Committee on Public Education of the Board of Aldermen this afternoon unanimously adopted a resolution to make the old Hall of Records, now the Registrar's office, a home for the National Historical Museum.

NEW ASSISTANT CORPORATION COUNSEL.

Phillies Had Trouble Locating the Curves of Giants' Pitcher, Evans—Doyle's Timely Double.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—To figure all things out and be fair in judgment, it was a hard matter to concede many chances of Shetland's quaker aggregation beating Father Knickerbocker's pets to-day. Of course a possibility existed but you could not make it a probability, even if you were a real Philadelphia rooster.

A fellow had to talk "form" and "past performances" to-day in support of his baseball arguments, for the race track folk made this the place where they whiffed away the afternoon, while the ponies were taking rests in anticipation of a hard season until November or so. But again to the Giants' very probable victory. First Manager Shetland looked over his few available pitchers, and found that but one was really fit for appearance in the box, and that was Felix, a mite of a chap, who on a previous occasion right here in this city was made to feel decidedly humiliated for the manner in which his curves were knocked hither and thither by the Giants. He used to play with Montreal after he graduated from the lots in South Brooklyn. But that's history; still one of the reasons to be advanced for a sure Giant victory.

Then there was Jackitsch, one of his under plannings was in very bad shape and caused him to appear like a spavined horse when he started to run. All in all, though, the Phillies' chances were as gloomy as the afternoon and there was no sun shining at last.

To strengthen the Giants' expectations Roy Evans was slated to go in and do the twirling for Doyle's boys. Anybody who would recall his past performances could not see where the Phillies would have a look-in. They just appeared to have the same chance that Gink or Jis Greenwood would have were they entered in the Metropolitan Handicap to-morrow, but, still, all was not fair and lovely at that for Doyle and his men.

Bean Can Play To-day.

They expected something akin to depression when The Evening World informed them that a cruel and indirect (according to them) Judge of Rochester granted an injunction restraining little Bean from continuing as a Giant until the other side of the story could be heard. The new hero of Polo Grounds fans, who has been giving quite an impression at George Davis would be but a memory soon, played to-day, though, but it was the to-morrow that caused the awful feeling.

Well, anyway, the Quakers tried hard to work themselves up to playing the game of their life in practice. They were not to be feared in that work, and in fact so ragged did they appear that Alex Smith, after seeing them, offered to don a uniform and get in and help them out.

Playing the ponies is Alex's specialty these days, and there is not much tendency toward putting a fellow in the physical shape doing that. Alex didn't get his chance, though, and the last seen of him he was taking the nearest route to Broadway.

In warming up a new idea this afternoon, they found something was required to enable their men to locate the plate, and so when Felix and McGee were doing their trial spins, a batter was put up to give them an inkling as to how to "get 'em over." The batter was required to get out an accident policy by the Board of Health before he undertook his risky position.

The Giants, it must be said, want all that's a-coming to them. They cannot get over arguing that Umpire Hank O'Day handed the game a week ago in Brooklyn to the Dodgers, and just as a matter of form are going to protest. It Manager Fogel hates to have that game credited as "one lost" to Bill Kennedy and he is going to have it thrown out if possible. Doyle claims he didn't say a word before he was put out, and on that ground and the additional fact that "Hank" tolerated an argument by the National League, which has a suit of officers now in the St. James Building, at Twenty-fifth street and Broadway.

Double Umpire System To-day.

The double umpire system was in vogue to-day, for instead of the appearance of Hank O'Day alone, Tom Brown

THREE TORNADOES AT ONCE

KILL MANY IN IOWA TOWNS.

Land Swept Clean by Terrific Storms That Move Simultaneously, 100 Miles Apart.

PEER MOORE, is, May 2.—Three tornadoes simultaneously swept through three different counties in Central Iowa last night, resulting in serious injuries to twelve persons and over $5000 damage to property and growing crops. The injured are David Hurdle, of Harard, Hader Williams, of Weiden, and the Louis Williams, of Weiden, all die.

At Harard the tornado in one minute swept away a large part of the town. The storm was over one hundred miles apart, the one sweeping through Harard, a town of 80 inhabitants in Guthrie County, another through the town of Weiden and Van Wert in Des Moines County, and the third through Lakeview in Calhoun County. The wind blew at a velocity of 10 miles an hour and was followed by a deluge of rain, which in some places almost reached the proportion of a water spout. All telegraph wires were leveled and details were unknown till today, and then only vaguely.

So far as known each of the three tornadoes swept a path about one mile wide in width through the three different counties and cut a large area even a fence post is lying lying.
